

GLENDALE COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Glendale Community College was founded in 1927 to serve the needs of the people in the Glendale Union High School District which included La Crescenta, Glendale, and Tujunga. The school was founded as Glendale Junior College and from 1927 to 1929 conducted classes in the buildings of Glendale Union High School at Broadway and Verdugo in the City of Glendale. In 1929 the junior college moved to the Harvard School plant of the Glendale Union High School District where it remained until 1937. In this year a new plant, part of the present one, was completed and occupied. The year before, in 1936, the Glendale Junior College District was dissolved as such and became a part of the new Glendale Unified School District. The name of the school was changed to Glendale College in 1944. On July 1, 1970 Glendale College became a part of the Glendale Junior College District. On April 20, 1971 the Board of Education adopted a resolution changing the District name to Glendale Community College District.

On November 3, 1980, Glendale voters approved a measure to establish separate Boards. In April 1981, the new members were added to the Board. The separation resulted in the creation of a Board of Trustees solely responsible for the governance of the Glendale Community College District.

In 1936, 25 acres were acquired for the present site of the college. The campus now consists of 100 acres and 15 permanent buildings. It is beautifully located on the slopes of the San Rafael Mountains overlooking the valleys in the Glendale area.

Glendale Community College has a college-credit enrollment of about 15,000 day and evening students, and approximately 10,000 others are reached through the adult education program, specialized job training programs such as CalWORKs, and contract instruction administered by the Professional Development Center.

WE'RE GROWING WITH YOU...

The Campus Development Committee's carefully designed plan for construction and remodeling integrates functions, improves traffic flow and retains and emphasizes the original Spanish architecture and unusual design features that could never be replaced.

Construction began in the 1980s with six tennis courts, including one tournament court with bleachers, and new parking lots that include the first-ever on-campus student parking.

The San Rafael Building was erected on the site of the old tennis courts. It centralizes student services, the student health center, and also provides expanded instructional data processing facilities.

A new Adult Community Training Center facility in the south Glendale area serves residents of the south-central area interested in English as a second language, office skills instruction, and other non-credit programs previously offered in temporary buildings and rented spaces throughout the area.

The Child Development Center was constructed on the upper eastern part of the campus off Mountain Street. It houses programs for instruction in early childhood training and a day care facility.

Remodeling of the Administration Building was finished in the fall of 1990 and the renovation of the Auditorium Building was completed in the fall of 1992.

Additionally, the college has added more student and staff parking on the northeast hill, plus a perimeter road linking Verdugo Road and Mountain Street to improve the flow of campus traffic and provide emergency vehicle access to the eastern portion of the campus.

The new Advanced Technology Center opened in the spring of 1995. The Library/Classroom addition and San Gabriel Building were completed in the spring of 1997, as was the Parent Education/Human Development Building adjacent to the Child Development Center.

The Aviation/Arts Building addition was completed in 1998, the Los Robles Culinary Arts Building was erected in spring 2000, and the J.W. Smith Student Center/Bookstore and Sierra Madre building opened in spring 2001 along with Plaza Vaquero. Remodeling of the Science buildings and construction of the Cimmarusti NASA/JPL Science Center starts this year. Future plans also include the Allied Health/Aviation Lab Building addition, indoor/outdoor physical education facilities, and a music wing addition/remodel of the Auditorium Building.

Glendale Community College reserves the right to modify its programs, tuition and fees, admission and graduation requirements, schedules and other policies, procedures and regulations stated in this catalog without notice. This catalog does not constitute a contract between the student and the college. This catalog is available in alternate text upon request.
